If the Italians only knew it, a big Kahuna from Hawaii could settle Vesuvius in short order.

Let the Canadian boat win the ocean race to Hawaii and every season will see an American yacht seeking the opportunity to take Hawaii's cup across the line.

Holstein's query whether the small farmer can do anything but get into debt sounds somewhat sarcastic, but just the same, the people are interested in the answer made to him.

These delegations making calls to discuss the street-car service all make it manifest that they have no objection to an improved service for the others, provided they are not called upon to contribute a few minutes of their own convenience.

Months ago it was said that every visitor to Hawaii would be a walking advertisement of the glories of the islands. According to reports from all sides these advertisements are so enthusiastic that they have to write in order to more speedily make known their joy.

WORK WHERE WORK IS MOST NEEDED

Assurance that Hawaii can never suffer by reason of association with other outlying possessions is very gratifying. We are inclined to believe, however, from past experience that this assurance can only be made secure by constant effort on the part of Hawaii to educate the people of the mainland, and Congress as well, on the subject of exact conditions. Under any circumstances, we doubt that Hawaii will have cause in the immediate future to quarrel over the Insular Bureau problem. Meanwhile it should not waste time needlessly.

Regardless of speculative improvements that might be created by a shuffle of the Department cards in Washington, Hawaii's status is primarily what Hawaii makes it. If our people show themselves to be wide awake, loyal, aggressive and balanced with common sense, the power of the islands at the National Capital will not be determined by the Department through which its affairs are handled or by the personality or politics of the President, or Cabinet Secretaries.

There ought to be no controversy over the development of Hawaii along lines that will command attention, let the Department in charge of our affairs be what it may. Let us make Hawaii's position so strong and so far advanced that the changes of possible Department responsibilities or Department heads will not be a power of such constant worry. Build up Hawaii at home, strengthen its reputation as an American Territory, send able representatives to speak for it at the Capitol, and we have a condition that brings about the desired results promptly, permanently, and in the most satisfactory manner.

There are many details in the American government which in the esteem of many might be improved for the benefit of Hawaii. It is better for all concerned to devote all our best energies to the improvement of Hawaii for the benefit of the American govern-

SOLICITING CHINESE STUDENTS

More than one intelligent citizen of the United States believes that our country will reap a double benefit by making a greater effort to understand the Chinese. At the present time our position is that of having made up our minds that we want nothing to do with them but all the while demanding that the Oriental shall deal kindly with us and buy of our merchants.

Errors of the present policy have been obvious to men in the Orient whose business has been seriously injured by the retaliatory measures adopted by the Chinese merchants. The idea seems gradually to be working its way into the minds of mainlanders hitherto indifferent or ignorant.

Dr. Edmund J. James, president of the University of Illinois has proposed that the United States send a commission to China to extol the advantages of collegiate training in America and urge Chinese students to matriculate in our colleges and universities. His aim is to cultivate a more friendly feeling between the United States and China.

This, in a way, puts the cart before the horse, because the present lack of friendship between our country and China is due to ourselves and our treatment of students. Many Chinese students would like to attend our colleges if they were not treated like thieves and robbers striving to break into exclusive preserves. Our universities may be excellent but they have not operated to improve the immigration situation.

Such a commission should be promoted, however, if for no other reason than that it would learn of China. Other nations deal with the Chinese without sacrificing their own interests or self-respect. A commission such as President James proposes could not fail to absorb knowledge from viewing the methods of our competitors in the Orient.

KEKAHA SCHOOL EXHIBIT

Waimea, Kauai, April 9. — Kekaha school had the usual Easter exercises last Wednesday with an attendance of more than 200 visitors from all over the district. These occasions are becoming quite an event in these parts and are very much enjoyed by young and old.

Nor were the visitors disappointed this time, when they gathered in the always trim school yard; for exercises as a rule are held under the clear Kaha sky. The romantic moonlight and the subdued shimmer from numerous Japanese lanterns, hung on the verandas and from the branches of the trees, lit up the eager faces of the pupils, as they each and all rendered their proofs of the excellent training they are getting from their teachers.

All went without a hitch as usual at this school, and even when it came to the piece de resistance, a dramatized rendering of Hiawatha, the children bore themselves as if they had been accustomed to act before audiences for many years as they were old.

The whole entertainment being witnessed to the fact that the school with Miss Finkler as principal and the Misses Sheldon and Whittington as assistants, is in the best of hands, and is turning out results second to none on the island.

The public is thankful to Miss Finkler for arranging these events so as to take place at night and thereby giving a chance to attend them to many who would be prevented in daytime from Garden Island.

Ethel—"Tell us, Mr. Wytkins, which of us do you think is the prettier—I or my sister Alyce?" Mr. Wytkins—"Really, Miss Ethel, I don't know what to say. When I look at either of you, I think it isn't possible that there could be any one in the world more beautiful."—Somerville Journal.

"Yes, I picked up his book last night and I never budged out of my chair until 4 o'clock this morning." "Goodness! Was it that interesting?" "No, but I didn't wake up until that time."—Philadelphia Press.

Books, Bookish People and Things

"La Republique de les Grand Republicains." Paper, Illustrated. Edouard Cornely et Cie, Paris, France. 10 centimes.

A short sketch of the Republic of France and some of its great men. Among these are Condorcet, Danton, Hugo, Gambetta and many others. Albert Milhaud is the author.

"Histoire de France." By A. Aulard & A. Debidour. Boards. Cloth back. 408pp. Edouard Cornely et Cie, Paris, France. fr 60.

This general history "depoules l'Antiquite jusqu'a nos jours" is by M. Aulard, professor in the University of Paris, and A. Debidour, director general of Public Instruction. The book is well printed and illustrated, and furnishes in a simple style all that the average student ought to know about the interesting country now occupied by the French.

At the end of each chapter are questions on the subject covered, while there is an index.

Beginners in French will find this volume a good reading book.

"La France et ses Colonies." By Felix Muller. Paper, 182pp. Edouard Cornely et Cie, Paris, France. Price 1 franc.

A very timely and interesting treatise on the growth of the mother country and her colonies. The book might well be read in connection with studies on imperialism, commerce and the government of our outlying dependencies. Perhaps the French are not good colonizers, but they can at least furnish us with object lessons for our consideration.

POET'S TRIBUTE TO CARNEGIE

The dedication of Joaquin Miller's latest book, "The Building of the City Beautiful," which reads: "To Andrew Carnegie, the Builder of Libraries Beautiful," calls to mind this story:

When they were members of the Author's Club, Miller one day wrote in Carnegie's album:

"Here's to King Ned, and here's to our Ted."

But a single twist of Carnegie's wrist

"I'd choose instead of them all,"

In speaking of the matter Carnegie said: "I had this same little verse framed and hung in my hall at Skibo Castle, when King Edward came to visit me. The royal guest paused and began to read:

"Here's to King Ned,—why, that's me, Mr. Carnegie, that must mean me. Ho, ho, ho! 'And here's to our Ted'—why, that is your President, Mr. Carnegie—ho, ho, ho! 'And here's to old Oom Paul'—Ho, ho, ho! 'And here's to our Boer War' was in progress."

"But a single twist of Carnegie's wrist, I'd choose instead of them all," Ho, ho, ho! laughed the King.—Arena for December.

SAYS WIFE TRIED TO POISON STEW

Mother-in-Law Cause of Unhappy Married Life

The divorce suit of Frank Gouveia vs. Elizabeth Gouveia, which was heard by Judge Lindsay this forenoon, presented a great many interesting variations on the ancient theme of a trouble-causing mother-in-law.

The libellant said that his wife had caused much trouble by telling him tales about his mother-in-law, with whom they were living. She had several queer freaks, as, for instance, when she placed herself prostrate on the bed, with a sheet draped over her body and a towel over her head, lying motionless like one dead. To heighten the effect she had placed a revolver beside her. This tableau greeted her husband when he returned from work, but, he stated, he soon found out that she was not dead. Whether the discovery caused him grief or joy he did not say.

An attempt on the part of the wife to poison her husband was the straw which broke the camel's back. Gouveia said on the stand that a small girl called his attention to his wife's peculiar actions. He went out into the kitchen and caught her in the act of putting poison in the stew.

"I wouldn't mind living with her," said Gouveia, "if I wasn't afraid that she would poison me. She has tried it once and may do it again, and then get off by saying that she's crazy."

Mrs. Gouveia, who does not look to be much above 16, denied strenuously that she had tried to poison her husband. The poison, she said, she intended to take herself, because her mother-in-law made her very miserable by telling stories about her to her husband. She stated further that when the kitchen tragedy had occurred she ran out to the cemetery. She knelt on her father's grave and was whispering her troubles to the dear departed when her husband arrived on the scene and began beating her. On trying to escape she fell over a tombstone and was knocked senseless.

Mrs. Gouveia was of the opinion that if her husband would consent to move from his mother's house, they could live happily together. Judge Lindsay refused to grant the divorce.

On May 12, at 12 o'clock noon at the Court House, Honolulu, Hawaii, there will be sold at public auction several pieces of Government land situate in Paaloa Tract, Hamakua. For further particulars see ad, this issue.

A deplorable accident happened to one of the laborers working on the road gang beyond Kiloana, Kauai. The men were excavating a bank in order to get material for the fill, when suddenly the earth came tumbling down. All but one succeeded in getting away in time. The unfortunate man was caught by the descending mass and thrown against the track with the result that his leg was broken below the knee. The sufferer was taken to the hospital where Dr. Wilkinson attended to his injuries.

The great Kekaha ditch is now about to become an actual fact, as the several parties interested, the Government, Gay & Robinson, and the Kekaha Sugar Co., have come to an agreement. Work is to be let out in contract to several gangs for smaller parts of the line and Mr. Maloney is to have the inspection of its construction.—Garden Island.

LIHUE KEGEL BOWLERS

Lihue, Kauai, April 9.—Another of the contests occurred at the bowling alley Saturday, March 31, with the interest at white heat and consequent exertions of skill and muscle. The "Irish and Dutch" combinations from St. Patrick's Day had not turned up in full force and it was therefore necessary to modify the groupings to a great extent, a circumstance which, however, did not seem to dampen the enthusiasm. Even in this the so called "Irish" team came off conquerors, though it can hardly be considered decisive as they had valuable assistance from two "Dutch."

After the two first of the three games fought for had been played, the score stood:

	First.	Second
F. Mahn .....	147	128
F. Crawford .....	126	125
J. J. Hirth .....	168	200
H. Froelich .....	131	122
Harold Rice .....	59	130
J. Hogg .....	94	111
	765	826
C. Maser .....	151	137
H. Wolters .....	133	149
G. Winter .....	120	113
Chas. Rice .....	122	158
W. Schieber .....	92	116
F. Weber .....	81	84
	698	757

Mr. J. J. Hirth on this occasion succeeded in breaking the record of the alley by scoring 200, beating the former record by two points, the former record having been 198.

The Mokihana Club (Lihue) held its regular monthly meeting last Wednesday. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the attendance was rather slim, only fourteen ladies having ventured out in spite of the rain. Japan is now the subject treated by the club and proves a most interesting study. Mrs. W. H. Rice, Sr., read a selection from Stoddard's lecture, giving a very clear idea of the country and its people. Mrs. W. H. Rice, Jr., next claimed the attention of those present by her very able paper on life and customs in Japan, while Miss Elsie Wilcox treated the Physical Aspect of Japan in a very lucid manner. Mrs. C. A. Rice and Mrs. R. J. Wilkinson acted as hostesses on this occasion, needless to say in a charming manner.

I for one, with gladness hail with welcome Wallach's Indian Remedies and especially his pile cure, which I know from experience to be unequalled in its magical effect. Do not be fooled by a bunch of testimonials as given by patent medicines, for it cost me all my earnings for years and found them all fakes and a big lot of lies, so beware of any kind of testimonials unless you can find them when you want the persons whose cure you read about.
Wallach's Indian Remedies did me good and will certainly do you good. It has no equal on the markets of America. If you try Wallach's Indian Remedies you will never be without them again. It is really a twentieth century wonder and I for one again cry Hail Wallach's Indian Remedies.
